Pastor's Corner: More than often, humans tend to control everything, their present, and their future, but it is not possible to be in control of everything in life. It is obvious that we will face adversities in life and have some bad patches which may discourage us. It is not uncommon to experience failures, sometimes more than we experience success. It is in these times of darkness, that hope of a better future keeps us going. People tend to forget, that like the fears in our lives, there is an abundance of happiness too. David Odunaiya said that "Faith and hope work hand in hand; however, while hope focuses on the future, faith focuses on the now." Isn't this what Hebrews 11:1 teaches us? As we look down into the future of 2022, we ought to do it with hope. The hope of a coming Kingdom and the faith that God will see us through this old world and all its troubles. EG White said "We have nothing to fear for the future unless we forget how God has led us in the past." As we look back on 2021 may we do it from the perspective of God's guidance rather than the terrible calamities we had to endure. That will change our perspective for the future. Many Blessings, Pastor Vernon
